

GLSHK Interconnects with Tradelink to Facilitate Electronic Trading Services for Air Freight Community

(Hong Kong, 29 March 2007) Global Logistics System (HK) Co. Ltd. (“GLSHK”) and Tradelink Electronic Commerce Limited (“Tradelink”, SEHK: 0536) announced today their plan to collaborate to provide value-added electronic trading services for the air freight community.

Under the collaboration, Tradelink’s electronic platform will be integrated with GLSHK’s Ezycargo platform. Riding on such integration, members of the air freight community could now reuse the electronic information from the Ezycargo platform to submit Import and Export Trade Declaration (“TDEC”) via Tradelink’s “ValuNet” software to the Government. It relieves users from duplicate data entry and hence streamlines operations efficiency and avoids unnecessary errors.

A numbers of sizeable forwarders have already expressed keen interest in enrolling for the service and to enjoy the full benefits of this integrated solution.

Paul Tam, Chief Operating Officer of GLSHK, said: “We are thrilled to partner with Tradelink on this project. Ezycargo has been a pioneer in providing open and independent cargo information services as well as creating value to the cargo community. We believe the compatibility of GLSHK and Tradelink’s business activities will help to launch the trial run of e-freight and coordinates Hong Kong as the largest air cargo hub in Asia. Also, this will be an important element in implementing the e-freight concept and lead to further cooperation between us.”

Justin Yue, Chief Executive Officer of Tradelink, said: “GLSHK is a leading service provider of air cargo information services to the logistics community, we are delighted to integrate our platform with their system to jointly deliver superb convenience to the air freight community. Most importantly, this collaboration also marks the beginning of a new chapter between Tradelink and GLSHK. We envisage that the two organizations will work closely together to offer more advanced solutions and services, including the offerings for IATA e-freight initiative, that will be of values and benefits to the industry in the very near future.”
